This can be on your own; however it is also a good idea to read to an adult. This can be your parent, older brother or sister or even a family friend. Whilst reading at home with an adult, ask them to ask you a range of questions about what you have read. Retell the text in your own words, discuss characters and plots, and ask questions about vocabulary.

LITERACY/SPAG:

Miss Wright has forgotten to put his commas in her sentences! Can you help her? There are 2 commas for extra information, 3 for lists, 1 for a pause and 2 for a set of commands. Copy this short passage into your book, adding in the missing commas.

One day when I was walking to school I saw a lion. It roared and pounced and growled with it's sore throat and it was scaring me. Then it said "Don't go away! I just want to give you an iPad and an apple and an elephant and a unicorn and lots more!" I stopped and he gave me all the things he promised. What a nice lion!

NUMERACY

Can you practice your column subtraction? (in your books)
